

Dr Áine Carroll

MB, BCh, MD, FRCP, FRCPI

Originally from Northern Ireland, Dr Carroll studied Medicine in Queens University in Belfast and did a postgraduate MD in Newcastle University, Newcastle upon Tyne. She completed higher specialist training in Rehabilitation Medicine in Newcastle upon Tyne before coming to work in Dublin in 2005.

She is a Consultant in Rehabilitation Medicine, immediate past Chair of the Medical Board of the National Rehabilitation Hospital, immediate past President of the Irish Association of Rehabilitation Medicine and Senior Clinical Lecturer, University College Dublin. Dr Carroll is also Clinical Lead of the Rehabilitation Medicine Programme, National Clinical Strategy and Programmes Directorate, HSE and IHF Council on Stroke Vice-Chair.

Dr Carroll has published on a wide variety of topics including life expectancy determination in disability, the use of botulinum toxin in spinal pain, osteoporosis in disability, and whiplash injury, and has presented at many national and international conferences on Rehabilitation Medicine topics.