TO KEEP DRIVING FOR ANOTHER HOUR:

1. Find a safe place to park

2. Take 2 cups of strong coffee

3. Take a nap for no more than 15 mins - then stretch your legs

RSA DRIVER FATIGUE
WAKE UP TO IT!
European Union Rules on Drivers’ Hours

What do the rules cover?

The rules cover drivers’ hours, breaks and rest periods. They came into effect on 11 April 2007.

Who do they apply to?

They apply to all journeys or parts of journeys on roads open to the public by:

- goods-carrying vehicles where the permissible mass of the vehicle, including any trailer or semi-trailer, is greater than 3.5 tonnes; or
- passenger-carrying vehicles that are built or adapted to carry more than nine people, including the driver.

The rules apply whether or not the vehicles are laden (loaded).

Visit www.rsa.ie to find information about exemptions and national derogations from the rules or to download Regulation (EC) No. 561/2006.

In which countries do the rules apply?

The rules apply on journeys within the European Union or between Member States and Switzerland, Iceland, Norway and Liechtenstein.

Drivers on journeys between signatories to the AETR agreement (about the work of crews of vehicles engaged in international road transport) will continue to follow the rules in that agreement until the AETR and EU rules are aligned.

Journeys to or through the AETR countries are subject to the AETR rules. Further information on the AETR rules is available from the Road Safety Authority.

Driver breaks

How long can I drive without a break?

The longest period you can drive without a break is 4.5 hours.

How long must I take for a break?

You must take a 45-minute break. This may be either:

- an uninterrupted break of 45 minutes; or
- a 15-minute initial break followed by a later 30-minute break during the 4.5 hour driving limit.

During the break, you must not drive or do any other work. The break must be spent exclusively on resting.

How long may I drive each day?

The maximum time you may drive each day is nine hours. This may be extended to 10 hours no more than twice during a week. Driving time includes any off-road parts of the journey where the rest of the journey is made on a public road. Journeys taking place entirely off-road would be considered “other work”.
Daily driving

</tbody>
</table>
How long may I drive each week?

The maximum time you may drive each week is 56 hours. However, you must not drive more than 90 hours in any two consecutive weeks.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Day</th>
<th>Weekly rest period</th>
<th>Mon</th>
<th>10 hours driving</th>
<th>Tues</th>
<th>9 hours driving</th>
<th>Wed</th>
<th>10 hours driving</th>
<th>Thurs</th>

Using the example above, the driver could keep to the 90-hour driving limit in two consecutive weeks by driving for 34 hours in the previous week and the following week after taking the required weekly rest periods.
Rest times

How much rest time must I take each day?

As a driver you must take a daily rest period of 11 hours in the first 24 hours after the end of your last daily or weekly rest period. You may take this as:

- an uninterrupted period of 11 hours; or
- split rest in two periods – an uninterrupted period of at least three hours and a second uninterrupted period of at least nine hours. If you take this option, the total daily rest is 12 hours.

As a driver you may opt to take a reduced daily rest period of at least nine hours but less than 11 hours. You may only take a maximum of three reduced daily rest periods between any two weekly rest periods.
How much rest time must I take each week?

Rest time is time that you can use as you like. It may be either:

- a regular weekly rest period of at least 45 hours; or
- a reduced weekly rest period of between 24 and 45 hours.

In any two consecutive weeks, you must take either:

- two regular weekly rest periods; or
- one regular rest period and a reduced weekly rest period.

If you take a reduced weekly rest period, you must be compensated for the remaining hours. This compensation period must be:

- taken before the end of the third week after the week you take the reduced rest period; and
- attached to another rest period of at least nine hours. This means that you can add the compensating rest to either a weekly or a daily rest period.

Example

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Week 1</th>
<th>Week 2</th>
<th>Week 3</th>
<th>Week 4</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>35 hours weekly rest (reduced weekly rest period)</td>
<td>45 hours (regular rest period)</td>
<td>45 hours</td>
<td>45 hours + compensation of 10 hours from week 1</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

When does my weekly rest period start?

Your weekly rest period must start no later than six days after your previous weekly rest period. For example, if you finish your weekly rest period at 08.00 on Monday, your next weekly rest period would begin by 08.00 on the following Sunday.
Can I take my weekly rest period in the vehicle?

You may not take regular weekly rest periods in a vehicle. You may, however, take daily rest periods and reduced weekly rest periods away from base in a vehicle. The vehicle must be stationary during the rest periods and must be fitted with suitable sleeping facilities for you and any other driver.

What if my journey involves vehicle transport by ferry or train?

In these cases, the daily rest requirements may be interrupted no more than twice to allow you to drive the vehicle on and off a ferry or train, provided that:

- the total interruption does not exceed one hour;
- you have access to a bunk or couchette during the rest period; and
- the total rest period is still 11 hours.

The interruptions may only apply to regular rest periods. A reduced daily rest period cannot be interrupted.

You may treat time spent accompanying a vehicle on a ferry or train as a break period if the time is not daily rest.
What if the journey involves two or more drivers?

Each driver must obey the rules for continuous driving, breaks and total daily driving. However, the rules for the daily rest period differ, as follows:

- each driver must take a daily rest of at least nine hours within 30 hours of the end of their previous daily or weekly rest period; and
- there must be two drivers in the vehicle (this rule does not apply to the first hour of multi-manning).

Tachographs

What driver details must be recorded on the centrefield of analogue tachograph charts?

Record sheets must contain:
- your first name and surname;
- the date and place where the use of the sheet begins and ends;
- the registration number of each vehicle to which you are assigned at the start of the first journey and, if you change vehicle, during use of the sheet;
- the time of any change of vehicle;
- the odometer reading:
  - at the start of the first journey;
  - at the end of the last journey;
- odometer readings for each vehicle must be recorded if the driver changed vehicles during the working day.

What tachograph records must be available?

If the vehicle has an analogue tachograph, you must be able to produce:
- the record sheets for the current day and the previous 28 calendar days;
- any manual record and printout made during the current day and the previous 28 calendar days; and
- your digital tachograph card (if you hold one).

If the vehicle has a digital tachograph, you must be able to produce:
- your digital tachograph driver card;
- any manual record and printout made during the current day and previous 28 calendar days; and
- your record sheets for any vehicle fitted with an analogue tachograph that you drove within the previous 28 calendar days.
Information note for drivers or operators of buses and goods vehicles

In Ireland and other jurisdictions covered by the EU rules on drivers’ hours, you must account for any gaps in driving time records that arise from sick leave, annual leave or periods spent driving a vehicle that is not covered by Regulation No. 561/2006.

You can account for the gaps using a ‘form of attestation’, which is recognised in all EU Member States. You must fill in the form before starting a journey after the gap in records. All fields in the form must be filled in by typing. The form must be signed by the truck/bus operator and driver. For self-employed drivers, the driver signs once as the company representative and once as the driver. The form may not be pre-signed nor may it be changed by handwriting statements. The form may be printed on paper containing the company logo and contact details. You can download the form from the RSA website www.rsa.ie. A copy of this form can be seen on page 12.
