

Mr John Cronin

Dr John Cronin is an Emergency Medicine consultant at St Vincent's University Hospital in Dublin. He trained on the EM Higher Specialist Training scheme in Ireland, and at the Royal Melbourne Hospital - a major trauma centre in Victoria, Australia. He has a special interest in trauma and was the project lead for our institution's Trauma Unit bid. He is involved in a number of national and international trauma research projects, including in the area of cycling trauma.

He is a past-President of the Irish Emergency Medicine Trainees Association, founding member of the Forum Trainee Subcommittee of the Irish Postgraduate Medical Training Bodies, and is a current member of the Irish Association for Emergency Medicine Executive.'